The Public Library. The public library has recently received several valuable additions to its long list of books, and is growing in daily importance as well as popularity. The library has been conveniently arranged under the direction of Miss Jessie Alian, the librarian, and now certain space is allotted to everyone of the various classes of books in the library, so that there is no difficulty in finding any book desired on any subject. The books used for reference only are placed in a separate apartment, and the library is becoming a very popular resort for professional and business men in search of information.

Mike Roach was brought here yesterday from Ord and arrangued in the United States court for selling liquor without a licence. He first declared his innocence, waived preliminary examination and was bound over. This action seemed to annoy two or three of the old man's friends who came down to see him through, and at their earnest solicitation he consented to plead guilty on one charge (there were two filed against him) provided District Attorney Pritchett would agree to dismiss the other, as he had done an bour previous in a similar case against Samuel Sherman, of Heatrice. A Petty Swindler.

A very shrewd piece of swindling has just come to light, and a hundred unfortunate laborers are wiser but poor men on account of the swindle. It seems that a tall, slender, well dressed man, with dark eyes and mustache, answering to the name of P. C. Collins, arrived here last week, and, going to Mrs. Brega's employment agency, represented that he wanted 100 men to go west and work on the railroad. He gathered up the men on the streets and agreed to pay Mrs. Brega $10 for the use of her agency as his office. He collected $2.50 from each of the men and ordered them to await his arrival at Mrs. Brega's. He paid Mrs. Brega a forged check for $10, but never appeared to take his employes west with him, and the unfortunates finally discovered that Collins was a slick swindler and had gone for other parts with their small change he had col-lected. He is still on the wing and his vic-tims are nursing their wrath.

What He Thinks of the Grand Jury's Work.

Ed. Walsh is very sore over the censure of the grand jury upon the work of the contractors of the new county hospital, "one of whom I am which," to quote Mr. Walsh. "It is a shame and dead wrong," said Mr.

Walsh to District Clerk Moores yesterday morning, "for those fellows who don't know anything about buildings to censure contractors who have been in the business for twenty-

Then Mr. Waish proposed a scheme by which the county can get out of paying for the county hospital. THE REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE. How it Proposes to Handle Property

For Sale. "People generally don't seem to understand the aims and objects of our open board departure," said a member of the Omaha Real Estate exchange. "The impression seems to prevail that we are simply formed into an organization for the purpose of selling real estate and getting our little commissions. That of course is one of the objects of the association, but what we hope first to accomplish is the establishment of a daily meeting place, where business men, capitalists, property owners and prospective purchasers can meet an hour each day and compare notes and exchange views upon the state of trade and business in general. That is of trade and business in reneral. That is what we need more than anything else just at present. We have a fine large room on the first floor in the northwest corner of the New York Life building and when our exchange is fairly working we propose to make the meetings so attractive that business men will be compelled to attend them for their own interest."

"Will you explain in plain English, the tend them for their own interest."

"Will you explain, in plain English, the methods you mean to use in disposing of property and securities in your open board sessions?" was asked.

"With pleasure," was the reply, "and that is the point we want to get the people to understand. If you have a piece of property which you want to sell, you give me the which you want to sell, you give me the agency for it and fix your price upon it. I will, in turn, list it with every member of the exchange. If you want it sold at auction, we will offer it at such sales at our meetings. Or you may place it my hands for sale on call for one or any number of days not excall, for one or any number of days not ex-ceeding one month. That means that the lot will be called for sale for two days in succession and will then be put on the list with the secretary of the exchange and will be for sale by him or any member of the ex-change for thirty days, or a shorter period if so desired by the owner. The property may be relisted as often as desired, but will not be kept on the secretary's books more than thirty days at a time if not sold."

The regular annual meeting of the ex-change will be held on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time officers for the en-suing year will be elected and time fixed for commencing the daily sessions of the board.

Taken Unawares.

Unsuspected causes for malaria exist everywhere. A sunken lot partly filled with water in the vicinity of your abode, a new location upon land filled in, but formerly overflowed or marshy, and causes far more occult than these produce the atmospheric miasmata which constitute the germs, that, inhald sizes into forward agree and every if inhaled, ripen into fever and ague and con-genital maladies. A person taken unawares with a malarial complaint should, as soon as with a maintail complaint should, as soon as to declares itself, seek aid from the safe, non-disappointing, cordial medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has for over a third of a century, and in every quarter of the globe, relieved the malaria-stricken, and neutralized miasma in air and water. Last night there was not a ray of starlight, and from a leaden sky fell drops of wintry rain. It was anything but an opera night, but "Behemian Girl" and Abbott conquered. Boyd's was filled, and the enthusiasm was as genuine as the night was dreary. Who does not know "Bohemian Girl," at least in part, and who does not appreciate, in greater or less degree, its oft-sung numbers! There are some men who never die, Baife seems to be a man who shall live forever; at least until the people shall have forgotten the tuneful arms and choruses of his opera, which is, really, as enduring as "Home, Sweet Home."

The cast was a good one. There have been greater, even by this company, but last night little was found wanting. In her careful and interested rendition of her solos, which ranged from simplicity and tenderness to fervid and florid efforts; in her disposition to please an over-exacting audience; in the beauty, variety and richness of her costumes, it may well be doubted if Emma Abbott, in Ariine, ever appeared in this city to greater advantage. during as "Home, Sweet Home,
